

In December of 2007 an Automated External Defibrillator (AED) helped save a life at the Jewish Community Campus. Unfortunately, not all Jewish organizations in our area possess this important life-saving equipment. AEDs generally cost around $1,400 and are a necessity in public places where a large number of people gather.

Jewish Family Services requests an AED for its Help @ Home program which provides high quality, dependable minor home repairs and other services needed to help older adults maintain their independence at home.

Please contact the JCF (913)327-8245 if you'd like to provide this life-saving equipment.
