Young people who participate in Jewish camping and Israel experiences are more likely to be engaged in Jewish life when they become adults. These programs change lives forever because young adults are given the opportunity to experience Judaism in an intensive environment.

Working with local congregations, The Rabbi Gerson Hadas Guardian Society for Jewish Children has assisted over 1,200 students attend Jewish camps and Israel programs. In the words of one student, "The Guardian Society allowed me to participate in a journey that will forever be ingrained in my heart; I learned lessons that can only be taught through experience."
